LUSITANIA BLUNDERS EXPOSED

HELD BACK LUSITANIA LIFE BOATS

By HERBERT TEMPLE
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, June 17.—A sensation was caused today at the government inquiry into the destruction of the Cunard liner Lusitania by a German submarine when J. Baker, one of the survivors, swore that Staff Officer J. C. Anderson of the liner, stopped the rescue work while the ship was sinking.

This testimony staggered Sir Edward Carson, the Attorney-General, who exclaimed:

"Is that statement true?"

"I swear it is true," replied Baker. "From the bridge I heard Staff Captain Anderson order the seamen to stop lowering the lifeboats. Anderson shouted that there was no danger as the ship was not going to sink. There seemed to be a lack of competent seamen on board the Lusitania, also."

Baker's testimony was corroborated by Mrs. Rossiter, another survivor. According to Baker's story on the stand, Staff Captain Anderson not only stopped the lowering of lifeboats, but assisted women from the boats which they had entered to leave the sinking ship.

Steward F. V. Jones testified that when the liner was attacked no lifeboats were available on the decks.

Captain W. T. Turner of the Lusitania was recalled to the stand and testified that it was ten minutes after the attack was made before he realized the ship was sinking.

Seaman O'Neill declared on the stand that one torpedo fired at the Lusitania missed the ship, passing a few feet astern.

An official communication from the American government, showing that the Cunard liner had not violated any of the laws of the United States when she sailed from New York, was read.

In its reply to the first American note the German government raised the contention that the Cunard line had violated the American laws by carrying neutral passengers upon a steamship whose cargo consisted of munitions of war.

David A. Thomas, multimillionaire coal mine owner of Wales, who was on the Lusitania with his daughter, Lady Mackworth, declared that a number of the crew tried to save themselves first, without regarding the captain's orders.

ELEANOR TAYLOR BECOMES BRIDE OF HARVARD MAN

Eleanor Taylor, daughter of Howard Taylor, married at Middletown, Ct., to Gouverneur Morris Carnochan, Jr., of New York.

By International News Service.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., June 17.—Miss Eleanor Taylor, daughter of Howard Taylor of New York city, and Gouverneur Morris Carnochan, Jr., of New York city, who was graduated from Harvard last year, were married this afternoon at Christ Church, Middlehaddam, which edifice was erected in 1757 on land given by the bride's great-great grandfather, Samuel Taylor. Rev. Theodore Sedgwick of Calvary Church, New York, and Rev. Anton T. Gesner, rector of the Middletown church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Geoffrey Taylor, brother of the bride, was best man, and the bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Hartshorne and Miss Caroline Wyeth of New York. Frederick G. Carnochan, brother of the groom; Murray Taylor, brother of the bride; George Parker and Herman Schwab were ushers. The bride's gown was of white chiffon en train, with scalloped picot trimmings and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were gowned in orchid pink satin with picture hats to match and carried roses. A wedding breakfast was served at the Taylor Summer home. Mr. and Mrs. Carnochan left immediately afterward for a wedding trip to South America.

SCORES KILLED IN AIR RAIDS

BRITISH LOSE BIG WARSHIP

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin, June 17.—A British armored ship of the Agamemnon class has been wrecked and perhaps sunk by the Turkish batteries on the Dardanelles.

It was officially announced by the Turkish War Office today that a Turkish aviator observed the warship with her rear funnel and masts under water. The following is the complete text of the official report:

Near Avi Burnu our artillery bombarded the enemy effectively. Our coast batteries fired upon enemy transports and the allies' air headquarters near Sedd-El-Bahr with good results. One of our airmen observed in Kofalo Bay an armored ship apparently of the Agamemnon class almost entirely submerged. Her funnel and masts were under water.

The British Admiralty on Tuesday denied reports that the Agamemnon had been sunk at the Dardanelles.

The reports were brought to this country by Americans returning from England. The Admiralty denial was to the effect that no ships had been sunk at the Dardanelles except those as to which official announcement had been made.

There are only two ships in the Agamemnon class—that battleship and the Lord Nelson.

The two ships are pre-dreadnoughts, and are the last and largest of the pre-dreadnought classification.

They were launched in 1906, and completed in 1907 and 1908.

They carry four twelve-inch guns, ten 9.2-inch guns, fifteen 12-pounders, and sixteen 3-pounders.

They are of a normal displacement of 16,500 tons and have a complement of 685.

They are 445 feet long, and have a speed of about 19 knots.

The ships cost about $7,500,000 each to build and are notable for their ability to turn very quickly while under way in maneuvers.

HUSBAND AN 'ARM TWISTER'

Testimony that her husband had once broken her arm, and that his favorite method of abusing her was to grab her by the arm and twist it until she fell to the floor, was given by Mrs. Ella D. Nordstrom in the Divorce Court today before Judge Waite.

Mrs. Nordstrom is suing Walter O. Nordstrom for divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and non-support.

Mrs. Nordstrom testified:

"Besides the occasion when he broke my arm by twisting it, he twisted it so badly before that time as to cause me to fall unconscious to the floor.

"At another time, after there had been trouble, he took the baby with him and went away for the night. The next day he returned without the child and attempted to climb into the house through the bathroom window. My little girl discovered him as he was coming in the window, and when she told me of it he attacked her. I tried to intercede and it turned upon me. I talked to the little girl on telephone to the police, and he tore the telephone from its wires. The little girl then notified several neighbors, who called the police. On this occasion I showed the policeman some of the bruises that I received from my husband.

Mrs. Nordstrom told of a trip she had taken with her husband to Sweden, his native place. On the voyage over, she testified, she had seen Nordstrom but twice, and those times were on the way back.

"He never bothered to see me at all, and didn't even know where my stateroom was," she continued. "He was in another stateroom with two other men. I overheard him talking and drinking with these two men and some women. Once during the voyage I saw him walking the deck with a woman.

Another instance of shunning her, she said, was when he arrived home late at night.

"Frequently he would drag me out of bed by the hair to have me prepare his supper, and when I did not hurry fast enough to suit him, he would slap me," she added.

The Nordstroms lived at various times in Springfield, Franklin, Sharon, Revere and Dorchester. Last March Mrs. Nordstrom left her husband and has since that time lived in Medford. Nordstrom is contesting the suit.

Heiress Arraigned on Burglary Charge

NEW YORK, June 17.—Ruth Taylor Conlin, the twenty-one-year-old heiress of Amarillo, Tex., and her sweetheart, Donald Clapman, aged twenty, who were indicted for burglary, were arraigned before Judge Niemen at Mineola today and entered pleas of not guilty. They were released in $2,500 bail.

According to testimony given before the Nassau County Grand Jury the case is similar in some features to that of Roxenia Kelly. Both young people were caught in the lure of Broadway and are alleged to have stolen in order to get money to visit tango tea rooms and fashionable cafes. Mrs. Conlin is separated from her husband.

ANGELL AND MAYOR ACCUSED

Mayor James M. Curley and his associations with Marks Angell, "king of the junk dealers," were again under fire today, facing charges made by the Finance Commission.

This is the third time since the Mayor took office that the Finance Commission has made accusations against the Mayor and Angell.

The first time had to do with Angell's alleged purchase of Neponset land, just before a street was put through the district.

The second time was in connection with Mr. Angell's purchase of the old Probate building. This charge was made public a few days ago.

The third attack, today, charges Mayor Curley, Chairman Dillon of the Park Department, and Marks Angell of collusion in connection with bids for refreshment concessions in Franklin Park.

Two textiles of Marks Angell, to whose name on bids senior department clerks were made, the Finance Commission insists are "straw bids." Marks Angell and Chairman Dillon are accused of outstanding each other's testimony and Park Commissioner Nilson in the Finance Commission's authority for directly implicating Mayor Curley in the deal.

"The accusation is on," Mayor Curley said in his reply to the charges of special privilege by the Finance

MORE FACTS ABOUT MARKS ANGELEVITZ

Mayor Curley's Friend, Who Changed His Name to Marks Angell.

Marks Angelevitz was born at Smorgonie, Russia, September 15, 1870.

He took the name of Marks Angell in this city eight years ago, under permission given by the Probate Court. The name was now universities.

Both Marks Angelevitz and Marks Angell he has been classed as a close personal and political friend of Mayor Curley for fifteen years past.

He has lived in Boston more than twenty years, and is often referred to as the "King of the Junk Dealers."

Marks Angelevitz emigrated to this country when seventeen years old, lived five years in New York and Baltimore, and afterward lived in Roxbury street, in the Roxbury district.

He owns a junk business under the name of the Roxbury Iron & Metal Company, with his principal headquarters in a tenement on the waterfront at Atlantic avenue, Northend.

The city recently built a street through the property, which also formed the basis of a Finance Commission investigation.

Mayor Curley makes no secret of his "profound admiration for Marks Angell," although strenuously denying that he has any but a friendly interest in Angell's junk business.

Angell is equally outspoken in his professions of friendship for Mayor Curley and is regarded as the dominant influence behind the administration in the city.

CIVILIANS VICTIMS OF AIR BOMBS

By JOHN C. FOSTER.
Special Correspondent of International News Service.

LONDON, June 17.—Two hundred and twenty-one persons, mainly non-combatants, have been killed and many more mortally hurt in air raids during the past forty-eight hours.

Dispatches from Amsterdam today stated that 200 persons had been killed in the great air raid of the allies over Karlsruhe, capital of Baden, Germany, on Tuesday. A telegram from Paris said that five persons were killed at Nancy by bombs from German aeroplanes.

The Admiralty admits that sixteen persons were killed in the Zeppelin raid over the northeastern coast of England Tuesday night.

LOSS NOT KNOWN.

The loss of life in any to German air raids over Belfort and St. Die was not known here when this dispatch was written.

The following Paris dispatch gave the details of the air raid over Nancy:

Six German aeroplanes took part, according to paris. The French guns drove off four of the machines, but two succeeded in the attack. One bomb did upon the vault of Mme. Caignart and killed her daughter on the spot while they were seated in the half dressing parlor. A painter was killed while at work. Of all the victims only one was a soldier."

The German aerial attacks were avowedly reprisals for the raid on Karlsruhe.

Dispatches from Berlin report that only nineteen persons were killed and fourteen seriously wounded in Karlsruhe. The people are said to be much incensed, and the Berlin newspapers print editorials denouncing the attack and calling for reprisals.

DENOUNCE FRENCH.

They confirmed the French raid on an undefended town, killing civilians, with the care which, they claim, German aeroplanes have hitherto taken to attack only military.

News from Switzerland is that Karlsruhe was much more seriously damaged by the raid than has been hitherto supposed. Two great bombs, it is reported, fell on the Grand Ducal palace, entirely destroying its wing and seriously destroying the other. Additional bombs fell on the railway factory, railway station and the tracks, doing much damage.

Trains from Karlsruhe to Basel are said to be from six to eight hours late, and arriving travelers report that fires were still burning around the railway station when they left.

FATE OF LEMBERG HANGS ON BATTLE

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, June 17.—Increasing fierceness marks the mighty engagements between the Austro-Germans and Russians east of the San River, in northern Galicia, upon which hangs the fate of Lemberg, according to an official statement given out by the Russian War Office today.

Numerous repulses for the German troops of Field Marshal von Hindenburg in Poland are announced. The Germans, using vast numbers of shells, are carrying on a mighty cannonade at many points along the line in Poland, especially on the Bzura River, has again been bombarded by the Germans.

In the region of Kozlowsky, Russian Kovno, the Germans, on the Venta, and on the extreme of the remains hundreds were ashed by the Germans.

The text of the official statement follows:

"German attacks during the last three days around the village of Lutkowa, near the Nikolajew River, were unsuccessful on Tuesday the fighting came to a close in that area.

"In the region of Kozlyljanys our troops crossed the river Bzura and forced the German enemy cavalry gained hundreds of Germans and made prisoners of them.

"Fighting near Skwirl (trawler) continues with varying results, some villages in that region having taken into the hands of the Germans.

"Along the Dubrossa River, artillery duels are in progress.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES.

"On the middle Niemen River front the enemy on Monday and Tuesday continued his heavy losses while making fruitless attempts to take the offensive. In the course of our counter attacks, east of Mariampol, we captured some villages which had been held by the Germans.

"On Tuesday night the enemy began another bombardment of those were but by 2 o'clock Wednesday morning the batteries of the fortresses had succeeded in silencing the German guns.

"Along the front of the Narew and Omulew Rivers, unimportant fighting has taken place.

Along the Orzyc River, which runs parallel with the Narew, the enemy, during the night, opened heavy bombardment with numerous batteries against our positions near the village of Jednorozec and Lipsk, throwing thousands of projectiles within a very short time.

TRENCHES RECAPTURED.

"The enemy tried to attack our positions several times on Tuesday." As a result of his efforts he occupied part of one of the trenches of one Russian regiment which had been completely destroyed by German artillery fire before our men gave it up.

"North of Przasnysz (Poland), by energetic counter attacks, we have captured all the advanced trenches which we had lost to the enemy on Saturday.

"In Western Galicia the battle of the San continues with increasing fierceness."

Flyer Thaw Soon Expected to Join Dardanelles Army

NEW YORK, June 17.—Benjamin Thaw, Jr., brother of William Thaw, the Providence, R. I., flyer now on the western front, hears the aviator is soon to be transferred to the Dardanelles.

He says Flyer Thaw has taken photographs of shells bursting nearby and that when a shell burst near his Gaudron machine and shattered the tail, William volplaned toward the French lines, followed by shells of the enemy, and landed unhurt, but much shaken up."

3 MORE BRITISH SHIPS TORPEDOED

By HERBERT TEMPLE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, June 17.—After a brief lull German submarines have resumed their activity in the waters around Great Britain. Up to noon today reports had been received of the destruction of a British steamship and a British trawler by German undersea boats. Another British steamship was attacked and reached port in a sinking condition.

The British steamship Trafford was the first victim, with 2,000 small tales. Ten American trawler Lapwing was attacked in the North sea and sunk by the submarine.

The British steamship Tarawera, 4,267 tons, owned by the Shaw Line of New York, was held up by a German submarine. Bombs were placed on board the vessel, but the crew was able to keep the Tarawera afloat and she reached Shoreham Haven, Wales.

The British steamer Monfort was chased by a submarine and was driven off by the most desperate work, some use in time to drive off the enemy's water craft.

The steamship Tarrwell, sailed from London, Sept. 200 feet long and 45 feet wide. She was built at Newcastle in 1891.

BRITISH CENSOR LETS REPORT OF DISASTER TO WARSHIP PASS HIM

LONDON, June 17.—A news agency dispatch from Amsterdam today says Constantinople reports that a large enemy warship was sunk between Kalimnos and the Asiatic coast as the result of an explosion."

Earlier in the day a wireless message from Berlin had stated that, according to the Turkish War Office, a warship of the Agamemnon class had been sunk in the Dardanelles. The fact that the British government denied not supposed those dispatches was regarded as significant.

VON BERNSTORFF SILENT ON 'HOAX'

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Nothing but silence today was forthcoming from Count Johann von Bernstorff, German ambassador, who returned to New York after an attempted trip through the Catskills. His secretary said he would have nothing to say for publication at this time about the newspaper allegations that Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, his supposed secretary to Berlin, was none other than Dr. Albert Meyer, a high official of the imperial German war ministry.

Dr. Meyer-Gerhard was an alleged representative of the Red Cross. Dr. Albert Meyer has been in this country interested in the matter of cotton, it was mentioned here.

It is believed here that the State Department still demand an explanation from Ambassador von Bernstorff concerning the story that he "bonused" the United States government by obtaining a safe conduct for the German war official under the guise of Meyer-Gerhard.

The Ambassador's secretary at the Ritz-Carlton today expressed the belief that Count von Bernstorff already has communicated with Washington, but would not make a positive statement.

Mrs. Belina Lewis, the munitions broker, mentioned in stories about the negotiations for arms here by Dr. Meyer, said today she had been ordered by the United States Department of Justice not to give out any information bearing on her connection and to hold herself in readiness to testify.

French Victory in the Fecht Valley

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 17.—A tremendous offensive movement has been begun by the French in Alsace. An important victory in the valley of the Fecht river, in the Vosges mountains, was announced by the French War Office today. The French are now masters of the important heights along the Fecht river.

The Fecht line west of Colmar, one of the important links in the German defenses of the Germanic.

North of Verex the British troops gained another line of German trenches, but were unable to hold the trenches captured from the Germans west of La Bassee.

Submarine Sinks 3 Turkish Troopships

By International News Service.

ATHENS, June 17.—Three Turkish troopships have been torpedoed at the Dardanelles by a British submarine, it is stated in a dispatch from Tenedos. A majority of those on board the transports were killed. The Turkish ships were attacked in the Golfoni Horn, the harbor of Constantinople by a submarine which had passed through the Dardanelles and destroyed the Turkish fleet in the sea of Marmora.

CURLEY AND ANGELL ACCUSED OF COLLUSION ON CITY BIDS

Commission. "The Finance Commission has published another political document. This campaign document starts out with a story of special privilege, then follows with page after page on Marks Angell, his son-in-law and his brother-in-law, John F. Fitzgerald, which does not even begin to find neither Angell nor his relatives get any privileges at any time after all.

TALK OF "STRAW MEN."

"I have nothing to do with Mr. Angell. I had nothing to do with him in connection with the probate building and I had nothing to do with him or his relatives in connection with the bids for the refreshment privilege at Franklin Park.

"If the Park Commission were inclined to give any special privilege to any member of the Angell family, it could have accepted the third bid, that of Mr. Kittredge, and this action would have been sustained by the Finance Commission, apparently, for it has criticised the Park Commission for refusing to award a contract where only one bid was received.

"PLAYING POLITICS"

"But the commission had to play the political game, for it thinks it is a good political drive at the Mayor whenever it can find occasion to use Mr. Angell's name. This is because Mr. Angell has been said to be a partner of the Mayor, a statement which was denied by Mr. Angell to the commission, but which the Finance Commission 'forgot' to mention in its report.

"Before the contract came to me for my signature I was informed by the corporation counsel that Rubin had expected to get not only the privilege of selling refreshments in the building to be erected by him but also the privilege of selling refreshments in the existing refectory building. The corporation counsel said he informed Rubin that the refectory building was already leased to another, and that it had two years from the first of next July to run. Consequently it could not be included in Rubin's privileges.

"On the next advertisement Rubin was the only bidder and the Park Commission rejected his bid on the ground that there was no real competition where only one bid was received. It is possible that this was a mistake, but if so it was an honest mistake, as there are many precedents for refusing to award a contract where only one bid is received, the reason being that a larger number of bids might result in better bids.

"GIBSON MISTAKEN.

"As to Commissioner Gibson's testimony, the Finance Commission has either misquoted him or he is mistaken as to the time of his conversation with me. It was not before the bids were opened. It couldn't have been, as I did not learn the terms of Rubin's bid or of any of the other bids until after the bids had been opened. The fact that no contract has been executed to anyone for this privilege ought to convince any fairminded man that I have insisted upon the city's interests being protected and have not desired to favor anybody.

FINANCE COMMISSION CHARGES.

The reports of the Finance Commission charged:

That Mayor Curley, Chairman Dillon and Marice Angell were in collusion to capture the Franklin Park concession;

That Rubin, Angell's son-in-law, and Schlesinger, his brother-in-law, were used as "straw men" to cover Angell and Mayor Curley's interest in the concession bids.

That the Rubin bid was written in the office of the Park Department, on Park Department stationery, with a Park Department typewriter;

That Chairman Dillon and Marice Angell contradicted one another in their testimony to the commission;

That Rubin apparently knew nothing about his own bid when questioned by the Finance Commission;

That Mayor Curley's reason for Rubin's withdrawal differed from that given by Rubin and by Dillon.

That the city was rescued from the "special privilege" only by the activity of the Finance Commission.

"We find," reports the commission, "that this is even a more serious case of special privilege than that granted to Marks Angell in connection with the sale and tearing down of the probate building, and that the interests of the city were not sufficiently protected by the Park and Recreation Department in this transaction."

IMPLICATES CURLEY.

The Mayor is directly implicated by the Finance Commission in the "deal," not only by the testimony of Park Commissioner Gibson, but through a letter of his own announcing that Rubin wished to withdraw his bid for the concession because he had misunderstood that he was to have the use of the refectory building.

"This letter is significant," says the Finance Commission's report, "inasmuch as it is wholly at variance with the testimony of both the chairman of the Park and Recreation Department and Mr. Rubin in withdrawing his bid.

"To chairman of the Park and Recreation Department, Mr. Dillon, in his testimony before the commission, made no mention of the refectory building or any misunderstanding connected with it as a reason for allowing Mr. Rubin to withdraw his bid.

"Mr. Rubin's testimony is equally conflicting with your honor's letter. He denied that he had any intention of including the refectory building in his first bid, but knew distinctly that it was excluded."

ITALIAN VICTORY AT MONTE NERO

By BRITTON D'ALLARIE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, June 17.—After a week of continuous fighting the Italians have finally captured all the Austrian positions in Monte Nero, northwest of Tolmino (Carnia), according to dispatches from the front today. Italian batteries are being mounted on the peak 4,000 feet above the sea level.

All along the Tyrolese and Trentino fronts the Austrians are being reinforced, it is officially announced by the Italian War Office.

The Italians in the Monte Nero zone of operation northwest of Tolmein (Tolmino) have taken 315 more Austrian prisoners, including fourteen officers. Many other prisoners have not yet been counted.

The new Italian positions along the Isonzo River are being consolidated.

CROWD TRIES TO FREE PRISONERS

Patrolmen Hormel and Norton were roughly handled by a crowd of Bunker Hill Day celebrators at Sullivan square, Charlestown, early today, and were forced to fire two shots in the air to summon help and drive off the crowd so that each could take a prisoner to the signal box. A number of men sustained cuts on the head in chasing with others who tried to help the police.

Patrolman Hormel seized a man who had struck a young woman, breaking her glasses and cutting her face. The young woman's screams attracted many persons from the playground nearby, and they, misunderstanding the situation, attempted to block the policeman in making an arrest.

Marblehead Man, 'Truest Friend' in Heaton Will

Mrs. Jeannie Hamilton Heaton of New York has left all her estate of "over $10,000" to Jacob Howard Cropley of Marblehead, who is described as the testator's "best and truest friend." Mrs. Heaton cuts off her husband, aunt and niece with $102. Mrs. Heaton died June 12.

Dispatches today from Manhattan relate that Mrs. Heaton's will has been filed for probate in the New York Surrogate's Court. Mrs. Heaton cut off her husband, Charles A. Heaton, with $100. In her will she stated that the husband is confined in a sanitarium at Greenwich, Ct., as a dipsomaniac and has money of his own.

Gwendolyn Kuhne, a niece, who lives at the Essex Hotel, New York, and Adelia A. Gessell of Norwich, Ct., a sister of Mrs. Heaton, are given only one dollar each. The will says that the niece and aunt are cut off "because of their cold and indifferent attitude toward me."

Mr. Cropley, who is named as executor, is given the entire estate outside of the $102.

A. Borealis Cuts In and Cuts Up Along the Wires

A. Borealis, the well-known celestial cutup, cut in on the telephone and telegraph wires in many parts of New England today, and the exces of static electricity for which he was responsible made a deal of trouble.

Both the Harvard and Yale observatories noted the effect of the Aurora Borealis. At Harvard it was said the aurora was accepted to be of an electrical character, and that its influence, while manifested only at irregular intervals here, was strong.

As evidence of the soundness of this theory, three persons out in the fringe of the storm area tried telephoning the observatory.

On telegraph lines between Boston and New York the excess current at times reached ninety volts. This caused a crippling of the wires almost as severe an during a similar manifestation in this section a few years ago.

Wireless apparatus and the back of the office cat were also full of surplus electricity.

Court Allows the Collamore Will to Stand

The $665,000 will left by Mrs. Helen Collamore of No. 317 Commonwealth avenue, and contested by her two first cousins, John R. Collamore and William O. Collamore, was today allowed to stand by Judge George in the Suffolk Superior Court.

The testator, who died at the age of eighty, left all her wealth to public institutions, cutting off her relatives without a cent. The will was filed July 6, 1914, as one of the contest shortly following.

Among her bequests Mrs. Collamore left $250,000 to the Massachusetts General Hospital, $100,000 to Simmons College, $100,000 to the Museum of Fine Arts and $50,000 to Radcliffe.

Aviator Jones Must Have His Pajamas

The European war has no monopoly of aviation thrills and uncertainties. Aviator Jones, who flew from Squantum to Providence yesterday, close behind the Merchants' limited, headed back, but landed on the baseball grounds of Cranston, R. I., for gasoline. About 4,000 Cranstonites rushed to the field. The assemblage all night and give evening flights.

"I won't," said Jones, "I would, but I left my pajamas at Squantum."

Sorely disappointed the Cranston natives watched Jones fly away toward Squantum and his indispensable pajamas.

Later report today from Cranston had it that a fund is being talked up to lay in municipal pajamas for aviators who arrive unexpectedly.

Pleads Guilty of Attacking Girls

Edward P. Welch, twenty-five, of No. 21 Brown avenue, Waltham, pleaded guilty and was given thirty days in the Waltham court today as a result of his attack on nineteen-year-old Esther Daly of No. 137 Grove street, Waltham, and Mildred Cook, also nineteen, of Grove Hill Farm, Waltham.

Welch last evening followed the two girls into a driveway leading to the Cook farm, overtook and seized Miss Daly, throwing her to the ground. The girls screamed and fought and Victor Pilblade, employed on the farm, drove Welch away.

GUNS BOOM FOR BUNKER HILL DAY

Charlestown, celebrating today the 140th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, is a district alive with flags and bunting, echoing with the bark of firecrackers and thronged with patriotic, good-natured thousands of residents and visitors from all sections of Greater Boston.

It is Charlestown's big day of the year and she is celebrating on the liberal scale for which she is famous.

Scarcely had the Night Before Celebrators concluded their speeches at three of the local clubs and the "Night Before" crowds sought a few brief moments of sleep than a fusillade of twenty-one guns boomed forth from the navy yard.

It was the signal for the opening of a day of patriotic observance that continued until the last skyrocket melted into the darkness above the Sullivan Square playground.

Bells in the many belfries of the district took up the notes welcome of the day and for half an hour changed to the memory of the citizen soldiers who were victorious in defeat on the bloody slopes of Bunker Hill.

Young America began to appear on the streets, then his sister, gowned in white and wearing a Old Flag or a bouquet. Flags were broken out on Bunker Hill monument, on schoolhouses, public buildings and private homes.

Last minute bunting was draped from windows and doorways. Visitors from out of town—friends, relatives and strangers—began pouring into the district on the elevated and surface lines, by auto and on foot. Charlestown's Big Day was in full swing.

Ball games were started on the playgrounds. The merry-go-round at the Sullivan Square Playground began to revolve with its first freight of merry youngsters. Fakirs began crying their flags, canes and other wares for nickles and dimes. Ice cream and lemonade men, perspiring, served other perspiring citizens.

Then the talk turned to the great parade of the afternoon. This military, naval and civic spectacle was planned to set a Charlestown record. The route was planned as follows:

Start ncher of Chelsea City square coast and north sides street, Setve, Gardner, Sullivan square, Main, Bunker Hill, Elm, High, Monument square, east and south side to Winthrop and Common.

Patrick F. Healey, secretary of the Hayes Square Outing Club, was named as chief marshal and Lieutenant Andrew J. Wilson chief of staff. A feature was the scheduled appearance of some 2,000 of Uncle Sam's sailor boys.

REVIEW BY GOVERNOR.

The parade was to be reviewed by Governor Walsh and after distinguished men from a reviewing stand in front of the clubhouse of the Catholic Literary Union in Monument square.

At the right of the line marched a battalion of the United States Coast Artillery made up of seventh, fifty-ninth, 152d and 153d companies from Forts Banks and Andrews in Boston Harbor. Massed was the Fort Warren band.

The Coast Artillery soldiers were followed by the battalion of marines from the Charlestown Navy Yard, who led the way for enlisted men from the battleships Virginia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Georgia, the scout cruisers Birmingham and Salem, Gunboat Marietta, and the Dixie.

The three provisional regiments, composed of companies of the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Massachusetts Infantry followed. Organizations here included Company A, Naval Brigade, M. V. M.; Company A, Signal Corps, M. V. M.; Bunker Hill and Colonel Fred R. Bowan Camps, U. S. W. V.; Ninth and First Regiment Veteran Associations, M. V. M.; Abraham Lincoln Camp, S. of V.; Charlestown High School and Dudley School Cadets; Sacred Heart Cadets of St. Joseph's Church, Somerville; St. Mary's Cardinal Cadets of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, and military organizations of Irish National Foresters and A. O. H.

Band concerts will be given at Hayes and Winthrop squares and at the Charlestown Navy Yard this evening and there will be fireworks at the Sullivan Square Playground.

APPROVE CHANGE IN 'KIDDIES' DAY

The announcement in yesterday's AMERICAN that the date of the third annual "Mothers' and Children's" Day Outing at Nantasket Beach has been changed from Wednesday, June 23, to a week from that date, on Wednesday, June 30, has met with great approval all over Greater Boston, judging from the hundreds of letters which have poured into the AMERICAN office within the last twenty-four hours.

The change of date, however, does not in any way interfere with the grand distribution of 10,000 packages beginning next Sunday, June 20. The tickets have been printed and sent out to a number of the AMERICAN'S special distributing agents, who will be on hand and ready to redeem the coupons on next Monday morning.

The list of these distributing stations will be printed, with the coupon, in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

This change of date gives everyone more time to prepare for the outing. All will have time to make all necessary arrangements for a glorious day at the seashore.

Bathing Beaches to Open Tomorrow

The Summer schedule will be inaugurated at the 15 free bathing beaches tomorrow. Superintendent Henry Griffin will again be in charge.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A Physician's Advice

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declared a well-known physician of this city recently, "and I'm impressible, despite that fact, that there are thousands of people who are in the same condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood, so that they go through the system and are thrown out of existence before the blood, all the fat and food properties are extracted. In other words, they fail to get any fat from the food as nature intended.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy increase in weight, the digestive processes must be artificially assisted with the juices which nature has denied them. This can be accomplished by taking a Bargel tablet after each meal. Bargel is a scientific, nutritious fat producer, and is the most powerful combination known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and digestive juices, and forms a rich, fatty nourishment for the tissues and blood and its result effect is remarkable. Repeated gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Bargel is sold by good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution—While Bargel has produced a positive results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable fat producing effect, be used by those who are unwilling to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

BRYAN: 'MIGHT MAKES RIGHT' MAKES WAR

Points Out That Present European Struggle Is Not of Race or Religion.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Europe's so-called "causeless war" is in reality caused by the false doctrine that "might makes right," prevailing ever half a century after Abraham Lincoln's historic utterance that "right makes might," William Jennings Bryan declares today in the second instalment of his views on the cause of the war.

He draws his conclusion after striving to show the present conflict is neither racial nor religious in its scope.

After denouncing the strife raging in Europe and declaring that all wars are waged for selfish ends, he directs pointed shafts at those who advocate preparedness as the best insurance for peace. He also praises President Wilson's efforts for peace.

The second instalment of ex-Secretary Bryan's statement follows:

The conflict now raging in Europe has been described as "The causeless war," but since no one would be bold enough to lay the blame for such an unholy situation upon an ever-ruling Providence, it must find its origin in acts for which man, and man alone, is responsible.

It is not a race war; on the contrary the races are quite inexplicably mixed. Latin joins with Slavic, the Greek is the ally of the Slav, while in the opposing ranks Teuton and Turk fight side by side.

Nor is it a religious war. On the Russian the Greek and the Protestant Kaiser and Catholic Emperor have united their forces, Protestant and Catholic and unified their veteran legions against an attack which, as one unfortunately misguided communicants of the three Churches, the Church of Rome and the Church of England.

NO SUFFICIENT CAUSE.

Nor yet is it a rivalry between families. The leading actors in this unprecedented tragedy are related by blood, but kinship seems to be a negligible factor—it explains friendships or enmities.

No race, religion or family, each with many wars to answer for, can plead not guilty in this present inquiry. So far as can be judged there appears upon the surface no cause that by any known standard can be regarded as adequate for such a cataclysm as we are now witnessing.

The notes that passed from chancellory to chancellory were couched in most friendly language. Those notes could not have been intended to deceive. Sovereigns visited each other and were received with every evidence of cordiality and good will. This this if an adequate cause for war had actually existed? They have all denied responsibility for the war—would they have done so if they regarded the war as either necessary or desirable?

But there is even better proof, ape, indisputable proof, that no sufficient cause existed, viz. the conclusion to be drawn from inaction.

Would not these rulers have busied themselves trying to save their subjects by the eradication of the cause, had they known of the existence of such cause? Would they have spent their time in social festivities and in exchanging compliments, had they known that they were on the brink of war?

It is inconceivable. It would be a gross libel on them—one and all—to charge such a wanton disregard of their sacred duty.

FALSE PHILOSOPHY.

What then was the cause? If I have correctly analyzed the situation, the war is the natural result of a false philosophy. Theories of life are invincible, for they control for good or for evil.

They enter our veins being and may be as deadly to the moral man as germs of disease taken into the body are deadly to the physical man. The fundamental precept of this false philosophy is that "might makes right." It is not proclaimed how as loudly as it once was, but is often acted upon in particular cases by those who would be unwilling to endorse it as a general principle.

The individual makes this maxim his excuse for violating three commandments that stand in his way; this maxim also hospitality could not have been instance.

Each ruler declared that he did not wish war, would they all say leads nations to violate those same three commandments for the same purpose but on a larger scale. Strange that men should fail to apply to nations the moral principles which are now so generally applied to the individual units of a nation.

The tendency is to condemn the violation of these commandments not in proportion to the injury done, but rather in inverse proportion.

No one will dispute the validity of the injunction against covetousness as long as the object coveted is of little value or not greatly desired, but the last and all inclusive specification, viz. or anything that is your neighbors' is sometimes interpreted by nations to except a neighbor's vineyard or a neighbor's territory.

Covetousness turns to might as the principle to be invoked and the greater the unlawfulness the firmer the faith in the false principle.

Conquest is the word used to describe the means employed for securing the thing desired if the force is employed by a nation, and conquest violates the commandments—"thou shalt not steal and thou shalt not kill."

By what sophistry can rulers persuade themselves that while petit larceny is criminal, grand larceny is patriotic, that while it is reprehensible for one man to kill another for his money, it is glorious for one nation to put to the sword the inhabitants of another nation in order to extend boundaries?

It is a mockery of moral distinctions to hang one man for taking the life of another either for money or in revenge, and then make a hero of another man who wades "through slaughter to a throne and shuts the doors of mercy on mankind."

As in the case of the individual, the violation of the commandments thou shalt not steal and thou shalt not kill are usually traceable to the violation of the first and great commandment, thou shalt have other Gods before me"—that is, to the putting of self before service of the Creator.

OCCASIONALLY ALTRUISTIC.

The violation of these commandments by nations is not always, but usually, due to selfishness—the putting of supposed material advantage before obedience to the Divine Law.

War is occasionally altruistic in purpose and the soldier at his best exhibits unselfishness of a high order, but as a rule conflicts are waged for selfish ends.

The individual finds that Jehovah's justice cannot be eluded, for wrong doing works its own punishment on the wrongdoers in the form of perverted characters—even when he escapes the penalties of human law. The nation is as powerless to repeal or to ignore with impunity the laws of God. "Though hand join in hand the wicked shall not be unpunished."

If I have made it clear that the doctrine that might makes right is most common cause of war, we may pass to the consideration of a much quicker cure to be applied in war, namely, that "Like cures like"—the theory upon which retaliation rests.

The two are so closely allied that it is almost inevitable that those who endorse the former will resort to the latter—one represents the spirit of attack, the other, its most familiar manifestation. Retaliation is simply a wrong doing—a neck and neck race toward the bottomless pit.

GOSPEL OF FORCE.

And yet there are many believers in the gospel of force who have brought themselves to think that cruelty could be cured by greater cruelty—that the only way to win an antagonist is to go from inhuman acts to surpass him in inhumanity. The absurdity of absurdities.

But might must find a pretext for arming itself and what is the pretext? There was a time when men openly advocated war as a thing to be desired, considering it to each generation as a sort of tonic to toss up the moral system and prevent degeneracy, but we have passed that day.

Now all join in the chorus for peace. And how, according to the jingoes, shall peace be insured?

"By preparedness," says those sons of Mars. Prepare all, prepare and equip ourselves with the most modern devices for destruction, arm, drill, get ready, and then stand with finger on a hair-trigger musket and preserve peace—yes, preserve it until someone, by accident or design, gives the signal that all fall upon each other with cries for blood. Preparedness is kindling; opportunity is the matches.

We dare not trust the peace of the world to those who spend their time in getting ready for wars that should never come. Half the energy employed in preparing for war would effectually prevent war if used in propagating the principles which make for peace.

Instead of preventing war, preparedness provokes war, because it is impossible to coerce the people into bearing the burdens of continuous and increasing preparation without cultivating hatred as if it were a national virtue. There must be some one to fear; some other preparing nation that must be represented as plotting for war.

SHAM STANDARDS.

Hate sets up sham standards of honor and converts every wound into a festering sore; hate misunderstands, misinterprets, hate maligns the supposed adversary while every contractor, battleship builder and manufacturer of munitions of war applauds.

How can preparedness prevent war if all prepare? Each step taken by one nation towards complete preparedness excites the other nations to additional purchases and new levies until all have exhausted their productive industries and enhanced their moral progress. The doctrine that preparedness will prevent war will not stand the test of logic and the conflagration in Europe shows that it fails when tested by experience.

If any nation is without excuse for entering into a mad rivalry with the belligerent nations in preparation for war it is the United States.

We are protected on either side by thousands of miles of ocean, and this possession is worth more to us than any number of battleships.

We have an additional protection in the fact, known to every one, that we have the men with whom to form an army of defence if we are ever attacked, and it is known also that we have the money, too—more money than we would have had if all the surplus earnings of the people had been invested in armament.

We not only do not need additional preparedness, but we are fortunate in not having it, since it seems impossible for a nation to have what is called preparedness without having along with it a disposition to use its preparedness on the slightest provocation.

The leading participants in the present war are the nations that were best prepared, and I fear it would have been difficult for us to keep out of the war if we had been as well prepared as they.

Happy for our nation we have in the White House at this time a President who believes in setting the whole world a good example, instead of following the bad example which it sets in this matter.

Were an unspeakable misfortune it would have been if in such an hour as this the nation had been under the leadership of a President inflamed by the false philosophy which has plunged Europe into the abyss of war.

HOW TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF

This Home Made Mixture Removes Dandruff and Stops the Hair From Falling Out.

The following simple recipe which can be mixed at home, or put up by any druggist will quickly remove dandruff and stop the hair from falling out.

To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the hair of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, and relieves itching and scalp disease.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and, makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

A-K Tablets for Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the cause which produces the affection," says Dr. W. Ray of Blockton, Ala. Continuing, he says: "Physicians should exercise care in the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, since we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headaches, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose Anti-kamnia Tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one, two or three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headaches, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women."

When we have patients with regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Acetols," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few Anti-kamnia Tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action, and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Anti-kamnia Tablets can be obtained at all druggists.

OFF TO MEXICO TO SAVE AMERICANS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON June 17.—With three hundred marines, field artillery and machine guns, the cruiser Colorado sailed from San Diego, Cal., early today for the west coast of Mexico. It is expected that the cruiser will land the marines at Guaymas, or near there for the purpose of protecting Americans and their property in the present crisis.

Admiral Howard is directing the operations.

"We are offering asylum aboard our ships to such American settlers in the Yaqui Valley as wish to come out," Secretary Daniels said, "and we are offering them a guard if one be required for the journey to the coast. Most of these settlers were assisted in getting out about a year and a half ago, and they have since returned to the Valley."

Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle-removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome traces of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful saxolite formula, once they have given it a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvelous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crowsfeet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its surprisingly quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity and its inexpensiveness are other commendable features, for one needs only dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is beheld.

It is not only the effect on wrinkles and crowsfeet that is so noticeable, but facial contour is remarkably improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite. The lotion, being so refreshing, is particularly grateful to tired faces these warm, depressing days.

Jess Willard's Story of His Life

Johnson's Victory Over Jeffries Started Jess on Road to Fame.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

CHAMPION SAYS HE WENT INTO RING AS BUSINESS

"By George, Jess, you're the man to whip Johnson."

Willard became "white hope" on the day Jeffries lost the crown.

JIM JEFFRIES got licked on July 4, 1910, because he hadn't taken care of himself. The big, powerful body was there all right, but the engine had grown too weak to drive it. His heart and lungs weren't what they had been.

Had Jeff been in his old shape when Johnson whipped him, I might never have become a prize fighter. I got the idea from reading all the newspaper talk about his lack of condition. It made me see that there was more to being a champion than just skill.

There's got to be endurance, and a fellow doesn't get that by a months of training. It's something that you only get and hold by a lifetime of training.

I knew I had it. My body had never known whisky or tobacco. I had never weakened myself by dissipation of any kind. I was a strong as a horse and I did not know what it was to be tired. Why, when I left the ring at Havana I felt as though I could have gone a hundred rounds more.

That's why I decided to enter the ring. That's why I thought I could win the championship. A body that has never had a drop of poison put into it!

I was in Elk City, Okla., when I got the news of the fight at Reno. By that time I had quit Kansas and was the owner of a freighting outfit.

It was this way. After I broke my Wyoming ponies and sold them I had more money in the bank than I knew what to do with. So I sat down and did some thinking. It's a good plan. Most fellows fail because they ain't got any very clear idea of what they are trying to do.

I figured that the horse breaking business was due to play out. It was only a question of time before the farmers would be getting draft stock and turning up their noses at range ponies. I had the marriage bee in my bonnet, too. I wanted a wife and a home and babies, and to get these things I had to have a regular business.

A livery barn in some good town looked good to me. I knew horses, and I had a good bunch to start with. So I picked on Emmett, Kan., and built a stable there.

I married in Emmett. She was a music teacher, and it never entered my head that she'd have me. Lord, I'd rather break ten bronchos than do that proposing over again. I was so scared I couldn't get my lips loose from my teeth. I reckon I must have made the right sign, though, for when I came to we were engaged.

I was barely twenty-one, and some of my friends thought I ought to wait a while and see something of the world before I settled down. Well, I've seen a good deal of the world since then, and I haven't seen anything that beats marriage.

A wife and babies can find character in a man that he didn't know he had. They give him something worth while to fight for. When I was a joke fighter in New York, and almost starving, I might have quit if it hadn't been for the family. When my boys grow up they'll marry at twenty-one if I have anything to say about it.

Wild oats make a mighty poor crop, and the trouble is they spoil the ground for planting good seed.

I lived in Emmett for a while and did mighty well. Then Oklahoma began to boom. Everybody brought stories of the rich soil, the way cities were springing up, and how railroads were coming in. I talked things over with my wife and she agreed with me that a move might be a good thing.

So I sold out in Emmett, and bought a farm in Oklahoma. I soon saw it was too big for me to swing so I traded it for a smaller farm and a freighting outfit. This was two wagons and eight dandy mules. Towns were popping up over night, and I figured that there would be good money in hauling to them from railroad points.

* * *

That was how I happened to be in Elk City on July 4, 1910. I didn't even know there was going to be a fight. I was standing in front of the barber shop, swapping lies with another fellow, when a man came running down the street.

"Jeffries knocked out in the fifteenth round," he bawled. He looked like his best friend had died.

"What about it?" I said.

"Good Lord," he yelled, "a coon's champion of the world. Think of the way it disgraces the white race."

He made me sick, and I told him so.

"That's silly," I said. "It's like arguing that black mules can kick harder than white mules."

I felt that way then, and I feel that way now. Whenever they called me a "white hope" it made me mad. As if a fight between a black man and a white man had anything to do with which race was better! That's something that brains decides, not muscle.

While we were talking one man looked up at me in a queer way and said, "By George, Jess, you're the man to whip Johnson."

I told him he was crazy. But he kept on insisting and a lot of others joined him. They pointed out my size and weight, my strength and my speed. The more they talked the more excited they got. If I hadn't gone home they would have had me matched with Johnson by wire.

As I have tried to make plain, I had never known anything about fighters and fighting. About the only fighter I had ever heard of was John L. Sullivan. He came into my room in Boston when I was there after winning the championship, and it made me feel like a bashful little boy again.

John L. looked me over and was kind enough to say I looked like a real champion. But he spent most of his time giving me advice like a father talking to his son.

"Let booze alone," he rumbled in his big voice. "You won the championship without it. You can't keep the championship with it. I tried it and I know. Booze is the enemy of every man, woman and child.

"Lots of fools will want to buy you drinks now that you're a champion. Don't be a fool with 'em. Whiskey's a fighter that always wins with a knockout. The friends a man makes over the bottle don't last any longer than the bottle."

I knew that Corbett had whipped Sullivan and I had heard of Hatting Nelson. You see, I read the market page in newspapers; not the sporting page.

On my freighting trips I turned the fighting proposition over and over in my mind. If Jeffries was whipped because he wasn't in good condition, then it showed that good condition could win prize fights.

I took a look at myself for the first time. I stood six feet six inches in my stocking feet. I weighed 250 pounds; I knew that I was stronger than any man I had ever seen, and I had done a hundred yards in 11 seconds.

All that I had to get was cleverness. What was cleverness anyway? Just a bunch of tricks with your hands. Something that lets you hit a fellow without getting hit back. There didn't seem to be any reason why I couldn't pick it up if I worked hard enough.

It was December before I could make up my mind. What helped me was the way Carl Morris was getting along. He was a big chap from Sapulpa, an Oklahoma town. He went into the ring after the Jeffries-Johnson fight and was winning right along.

Morris knocked out two or three fellows right off the reel, and then he whipped Marvin Hart. If Morris could do it, why couldn't I do it?

* * *

My wife nearly took to her bed when I told her what I was going to do. She thought prize fighting was about as bad as train robbing. She was afraid everybody would look down on me, and that the children would grow up to be ashamed of their father.

"Look here," I said, "a business is just as clean as a man wants to make it. Lots of bankers steal, but people don't look down on banking, do they? Prize fighting has been given a black eye by a lot of whiskey drinking bums. If I fight square, live decent, and don't hang around saloons, I don't see anything to be ashamed of.

"I'm not going into fighting as a sport," I said. "You know I don't like to fight. I'm going into it as a business. If I get to be any good I can make more in one fight than I can by freighting a whole lifetime.

She came around at last, and when she did come, she came the whole way. She believed in me when I didn't know whether I believed in myself or not. She gave me courage when I didn't have much of my own. It's Mrs. Jess Willard who's the real champion of the world.

I often look now at men who make cooks out of their wives instead of partners, and I say to myself, "You fool, you don't know what you're missing." If I was any good at making speeches, I'd go out and talk for votes for women.

When I made up my mind to be a fighter I didn't waste any time. I sold my freighting outfit and went to Oklahoma City. I fighted there in February, 1911, and the newspaper boys soon told the country that another "white hope" was on deck. One of them called me the Oklahoma Elephant.

(Tomorrow Willard will tell of his first fight.)

DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE INTO STORM

Three families, numbering at least a score of people, were driven from their beds at No. 123 Silverman avenue by fire and smoke early today, and out into rain, thunder and lightning.

The ground floor of the two-story brick block is occupied by Louis Silverman's second-hand store, numbered 118. The stairway entrance to the residents overhead is numbered 120. Silverman's family lives in the second floor front.

About 4 o'clock Silverman awakened by smoke from a fire which started in the cellar. Before he was climbing up the airshaft to the second floor. Silverman roused his wife and five children, who tumbled down into the street, and rang the other tenants were awakened.

The second floor rear is occupied by Mrs. Leah Harris and nine children. Her oldest girl, Bertha, aged seventeen years, helped the mother get the eight youngest children out.

Edward Swarts and family fled from the third floor. There was a report of still top floor tenants.

The fire and smoke fugitives, clad in nightclothing, were drenched as they ran from the building into the thunderstorm. Neighbors took in the various families. Fire, according to the police, was more annoying than dame, as the actual damage was kept down to $50.

North Carolina Due Here.

Why You Want a "Twin Six"

Faster pick-up and greater hill-climbing ability.

Greater range of activity on high gear.

Continuous flow of power, giving greater smoothness at all speeds.

A new measure of economy in gasoline, oil and tires.

Greater convenience due to accessibility of electrical units and valve mechanism.

Less wear in the bearings and consequent reduction in repair bills.

Shorter turning radius.

The bridge builder's factor of safety.

A new measure of motor values and motoring enjoyment.

A demonstration will revise your ideas of motor car sufficiency

The Twin Six is built in two sizes—the "1-35" with a wheelbase of 135 inches, the "1-25" with a wheelbase of 125 inches.

The Coffee Drug

Do you know what it is?

It's caffeine—a poisonous and powerful nerve irritant—about 2½ grains to the cup of coffee.

Listen to what physicians say:

"Coffee and tea are poisonous drugs. The caffeine they contain is of the same nature as uric acid. They impair digestion and produce various disorders of the nerves."

"A large percentage of cases of headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and indigestion can be traced directly to coffee."

If you haven't suspected coffee as the cause of headaches, biliousness, heart-flutter or sleeplessness, suppose you test the matter by a change to the pure food-drink, Instant Postum.

There's no caffeine nor any harmful substance in this delicious beverage—just the nourishing elements of wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses—with a snappy flavour similar to that of mild, high-grade Java.

The sure, easy way out of coffee troubles is to shift to

EVERS SCORES UMPIRE QUIGLEY

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The Boston Braves to a man are earnestly hoping that Jesse James Quigley and Dick Turpin Eason will not show up at Robison Field this afternoon. George Stallings arrived with his crew of peppery chasers this morning. They got in on an early train from Chicago, where they bagged but one of the three scraps from the Cubs.

Johnny Evers, acting as spokesman for the Braves when the AMERICANS correspondent failed to encounter Stallings, stated that hammering the game's arbitrators in the public prints was something he had never done in his whole life, but that if Quigley is in possession of his eyesight and the accompanying lot of senses he is badly mistaken.

"Quigley wasn't robust in Chicago—he was good and rotten. So ran one line of floral tirade. The fans down home know what joke ball he umpired at Fenway Park when we were playing the Giants. So came West," said the Trojan. "Well, his work here was flawless in comparison to what he pulled in Chicago. I'm off him for life."

Now that "Lefty" Tyler has turned in a winner, Stallings feels better. The Cardinals' six nights' cheats might now, having gained quite a firm hold on third place and Miller Huggins' charges claim they won't be satisfied with less than a 2 to 1 triumph over the Braves in the four-game series that starts today.

It looks like Rudolph for Boston and Perdue or Griner for the Cardinals. Griner started against the Dodgers yesterday, but only went a few innings and Huggins may send him right back to the hillock.

Bill Hunter Hero of Yale Victory

NEW YORK, June 17.— Yale defeated Princeton, 1 to 0, in the deciding game of a three-game series. Hunter's single in the eighth gave Eli the victory.

Hunter also prevented Princeton from winning the game by blocking three men at the plate.

"The Rabbit's" Column

By Walter J. Maranville
"HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES"

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 17.—There is an umpire in the Virginia league who takes pride in the shortness of the games in which he officiates, and he has made a remarkable record. The umpire in question is Bill McGowan, who officiated in the Tri-State league last season, and who was recommended to President Boatwright by George Graham, president of the Tri-State league, at the time it disbanded for the season.

McGowan has handled two games that were through in less than one hour and 15 minutes, and also has an 11-inning game in less than one hour and 45 minutes to his credit. In no game that he has officiated has the time of game exceeded the two-hour mark, and the best of it is that he is mighty good umpire along with his speed.

No loafing is tolerated and the players are forced to singer up at all times. Nothing he says of the games we have seen here this season, it might be a pretty good idea for President Johnson and Tener to get a few umpires who are proud of a record for quick games.

George Mullin was the hardest player to handle he ever met, according to Hughey Jennings.

"Mullin, at any moment, I could hear the yelp of 'take him out' further than any pitcher I have ever seen and as soon as this cry went up George was in the air. We all used to take things talking to him, cooling his temper and advising him to stuff his ears with cotton.

"There was always a tiff to Mullin's mental flight. It was any time he glanced into the blue of the sky above and spat viciously at the atmosphere. I knew rescue work had to be done immediately.

"But when satisfied with himself, Mullin was a good pitcher."

Hugh Jennings believes that his Tigers must secure more pitchers before they can hope to get into the world's series. He already has obtained Pitcher Hoyt from the Cleveland and it is said that he is bidding for one of the Browns. Pitcher Dauss,

MORGAN PREDICTS BRITTON VICTORY

By JACK CONWAY

We received a letter from Dan Morgan today. Be it known that the mighty Daniel is manager of Jack Britton, who is to meet Mike Glover in a twelve-round bout before the Atlas A. A. Tuesday night. Morgan declares that Britton will stop the South Boston lightweight in seven or eight rounds. Morgan sent his letter with these kind words: "Don't forget to be there to see Mike Glover flattened next Tuesday. Glover's friends have no reason to get excited, as Morgan is a rather impulsive gentleman. If we remember correctly, Morgan declared a few weeks ago that Matt Wells would beat Glover. We all know how Mike outclassed his opponents. Morgan says that Britton will probably arrive in Boston Saturday. Glover is preparing for the tussle at Highland Lake.

DAN SPEETRICK'S typewriter is not running very well. He writes that Soldier Bartfield would like to secure a bout for the middle or welter-weight championship with Packey McFarland or Mike Gibbons. Mr. Kertzel says that he is willing to post $5,000 with Bob Vernon to bind a match with either of these men. The New York boxing manager is anxious that the weight for such a match be 145 pounds. This is three pounds above the welterweight limit, but such a little thing as three pounds has never been known to worry a boxing manager.

RAY BRONSON'S press bureau sent us the following dispatch heartens an Indianapolis date line:

After two years' trying to get Freddie Welsh a game on a certain well-known sector, the local lightweight is out as far from a match with the Britishers as ever. Latest negotiations for a bout between him and the Englishman were declared off by Joe Levy, a Cincinnati promoter, because Welsh demanded Matty Baldwin's $5,000 and a percentage or a guarantee of the gross receipts. Levy made plans to stage the bout at the local arena, also through an Indianapolis license of a ruling of the Indiana boxing commission.

Ray Bronson, manager of the local pet, has gathered data on Ritchie Welsh showing that the Welsh-Welsh bout was bound tight, with the Matty Welsh manager understanding who the Englishman should meet next. Levy has had a contract with Sachs to fight Welsh in Winnipeg with Sachs almost two years ago, but the bout fell through when down in the ninth round only because the referee called Sachs's rolling out of the arena of the ninth and said that he had a foul. Sachs, upon the strength of this, claimed that he had made to the ninth round. Bronson said further that he would be willing to send Sachs against Welsh at the twenty-round limit, allowing Sachs to take all the receipts, looking after the interests of Ray is also looking after the interests of Battling Dick Daly, a welterweight.

A HIGH class boxing card will be staged in the open air at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. Johnny Dundee and Leach Cross will meet in a ten-round whirl while Freddie Welsh and Johnny Young Loutis will clash in another ten-round match. Lustig is a clever boxer. Welsh should speed up a trifle if he expects to send Sailor Burke to the canvas. Young Loutis is a fast half-mile, keeping the stroke up to about 37 for the distance.

The next half was a paddle and the freshmen's fast half-mile was rowed again, this time at a 35 stroke to the minute.

CONDITIONS EXCELLENT.

The conditions were excellent, smooth water and a strong ebb tide being in evidence. The times were fast, but were not taken. The second eight rowed less than the varsity, in the form of an easy paddle.

White was at number six, but it is expected Middendorf will take his seat today. Middendorf is feeling fine and was out in the morning for a limbering up practice early in the evening.

The freshman eight rowed down to the Navy Yard and return for their work. The freshman four and scrub four had a half mile race, the latter winning by half a length. The freshman got a fair start, losing nearly two lengths, but recovered it all but half a length.

MANY HARVARD MEN ON SCENE.

Former Harvard oarmen and coaches, including John F. Perkins, L. Curtis, who rowed 7 in the Henley crew last year; E. N. Tennessy, captain of the 1898 crew, E. C. Morrow and George S. Mumford visited the shells and watched the rowing from the John Harvard.

Coach Wray gave his entire attention to the freshmen crews in the morning, taking them down river and coaching from the launch.

The second varsity eight and the varsity paddled by themselves, row ing less than three miles.

Examinations finish Friday and then the second boat and freshman boat will do all their hard work and finishing during the morning hours.

Goulet Wins Sprint; "Team" Kramer Out

NEWARK, June 17.—Alfred Goulet, the Australian, flashed over the tape a winner in the one-mile championship at the Newark Velodrome and took the lead for the sprint title with a total of ten points.

Alfred Grenda and Bob Spears, the other Australians, were second and third. Champion Kramer was fourth. So apparent was the team work of the foreigners that the fans booed the Australians.

THAMES REGATTA OPENS JUNE 24

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 17.—One week from today the first gun in the annual regatta will be fired when the freshman fours from Yale and Harvard meet. This will be followed by a "gents'" eights, representing both universities, and already a crew is being picked for this boat.

Practice was light yesterday. No time trial was given either crews last night, as expected. Instead the varsity rowed down to the three-mile mark in an easy paddle and turned around. Then they lined up for a fast half-mile, keeping the stroke up to about 37 for the distance.

Fresh Favors for Fans

By H. W. LANIGAN

Going up! Boston's gallant Red Sox gained a full length on the clans of Cleveland and Detroit yesterday, and they are now nicely ensconsed in E. B. Johnson's Marathon. The field has barely traversed one third of its journey; the Sox have had every possible malady, and, barring disaster, will be troublesome the rest of the route. They should even up and probably will cop. But if they don't, will be a contender right up to the wire, sure.

Less than a month ago, barely three weeks back to be exact, it was carelessly reported out of Chicago and St. Louis, while the Hose were touring the West, that they were shot to pieces for all times. The club was reported to be demoralized from inside out done. It was further tacked on that the demoralization had reached such an acute one that the bunch simply couldn't come back. Twas nature's grandad, the spiciest possible, and accepted as the Gospel—in some spots. Recent results make a complete happy hoax out of those mournful stories. All the dope have gone utterly haywire. The West is to win twelve of their fifteen games. Said bunch of good work was pulled between May 29 and June 16, inclusive.

Yesterday's happenings were superb. While the Red Sox were mixing up the loudly-touted and thoroughly accomplished Red Stockings of Cleveland, and then spanking the White Sox, while the Athletics came to life long enough to snatch those ones from the Tigers.

Ty Cobb finally (?)ased off a game for Detroit. This sport's Iva Tanguay obligingly booted Jack Barry's timely line larron in the eighth inning of the night scrap at Shibe Field. The belt was good for a triple, but Barry was able to dash the additional ninety feet when Cobb made his glorious fumble. That tally raised the count to 6 to 5 in the Mackities' favor, and those were the figures adorning the scoreboard at the close.

Advices from Philly are to the effect that Cobb became so much peeved over his fielding error that the Tigerss section of the bleacher period he tried to switch balls on Wyckoff. The venerable H. Davis got hep to the switch and Cobb was called by the umpires. Wyckoff made a mucho start, passing six batters in three innings. Four of the gifts came in No. 1 and Detroit's first tally was forced over. A missed third strike paved the way for the Tigers' second and final run. So the merry Mackmen were lucky they counted at all.

For a change, Hughie Jennings sent George Dauss to the firing line. He yielded the same number of blows as Wyckoff—three. George was equally as wild as the abbreviated Quaker. He filled the cushions on walks to the fourth and Duffy Melonis' loud triple proved the all-important punch.

Walter Johnson pitched a 1 to 0 game for the Washington Senators, which, incidentally, is the big fellow's fan record for the year. Twice did Eddie Collins go out via this route. Two of the four hits made off the Sox were miserable scratches. Earl Sch.ik's two blows fairly hummed as they went over. Ed Russell was pounded for eleven hits, but elegant fielding kept the Nationals' tallies down to five.

Christie Mathewson was another rare old bird bobbing to the fore with a James Dandy bout. While Big Six was yanked in the sixth canto by Mcgraw, he showed enough to prove that his recent good game to St. Louis was no fluke, and that the outclassy compilers had no cinch off for him for at least one additional Summer. Schauer relieved Mattie. This gent was very wild, passing three batters in two, and giving the Reds another run. Young Stroud wound up and held tightly. Benton started for Cincinnati and Lear finished.

The 3 to 2 dealock established by the Giants in No. 7 stuck until their section of No. 12. Then three bingles and a punk peg by Kid Leach settled matters. Herzog is reported to have almost annihilated Master Emslie during the soiree. It appears that when a run was going over in the Reds' half of No. 7, Bob first called Charley safe on a close play at first and later reversed himself, saying the Red chief was out. Said verdict, if it really transpired, rubbed out a Red victory in the customary number of innings.

The Cardinals gained a toehold on third place by taking the farewell frolic from the Dodgers. Rucker and Griner started, but Appleton relieved Nap in the third, while Pete Meadows took "Blonde Dazz's" place in the fourth. Snyder's clipping single with the bases packed in the sixth chapter was the blow that busted up the matinee.

Master Meadows, a broiler under the big tent, was canned both on and off the field. He even has them on when he bats. Huggins stated early in the Spring that the Kid was the best looking debutante he had seen in a coon's age. And he must be, as he keeps on winning and has been doing his best work against the strong clubs. In his ala rounde against the Dodgers yesterday, Meadows was found for a single hit.

Red Robert Harmon uncorked another gilt-edged game for Pete Clarke and the Phils ran second in their scrap with the Pirates. Twas a rippling, fierce battle. Chalmers was almost as good as Harmon and nine hits were a very scarce article.

Gus Neibeff blingled in No. 2 swiped second, made third on Gibson's overthrow and scored on Lidgerus' infield single. The Pirates tied it up in the fourth. Collins' triple and Wagner's infield out brought the count. The winning run came in No. 6. It resulted from Carey's safe bunt, Collins' sacrifice and a wild throw by the good-looking Hartzell. The game was played in the tidy time of 1 hour and 25 minutes.

Red Sox Morning Game Called Off

The ball game which was scheduled to be played by the Red Sox and Browns this morning was called off at 10:30 o'clock on account of rain. A large crowd of men were at work at Fenway Park this morning and had the diamond in fine shape. Their good work, however, went for nothing, as it started to shower at 10:15 o'clock.

The Boston newsboys were to be the guests of the Red Sox management at the morning game. They were on hand and were greatly disappointed when the rain prevented a ball game. Their tickets will be good for the morning game of July 4.

Gaffney Orders Braves to Stop Umpire Baiting

President Gaffney of the Braves has so ordered today, as opposed to umpire baiting on the part of his players, and announced that they would have to "cut it out."

"Your talents make it too strong and fraudulent fantasy," that the attitude of the Boston players in two of the Chicago games was entirely out of line. "This is no way to be the leader of a team when, following the game the team is playing, it needs all possible assistance. I have noticed with regret that in the last game Umpire Quinlen is quoted as stating a lot of games. I have looked up the records and find that the Boston team has won as many games as it has lost with Quinlen, and when you look at the figures you will find that they are not much above the .500 figures, rather they are on the other side of it.

MEDFORD SPORTS ARE HELD UP

The rain today necessitated calling off of all the outdoor sports and sports in Medford and Malden. The ball game scheduled to be played between Medford High and Somerville High in the suburban League at Medford will probably be played tomorrow.

The game which was to have decided the championship of the league between Everett and Somerville could not be played, and a record will be made of the game to be held undecided until next Tuesday, when it was decided that the two teams will line up.

Over at Commission Park, Medford, the Spring races will start tomorrow instead of today, and will probably be extended to three days. The races were scheduled to take place for three days.

Much disappointment was evidenced in Melrose on account of the postponement of the ball game which was to have been held today. These events will probably not be run off until Monday.

The mammoth country circus which was scheduled to have been given today will probably not be given until Monday.

The Grand Army parade which was to have taken place at Tufts could not start, and the parade will probably not start until Monday.

Harvard Crew May Row at Exposition

SEATTLE, June 17.—Assurances that the varsity crews of Harvard and either Cornell or Pennsylvania will come here to race against the University of Washington during the Shriners' Convention, July 15 to 19, have been received.

The Harvard eight has signified its intention of having its own expenses paid to the Pacific coast, and Pennsylvania and Cornell indicate that they will come if expenses are paid. Thirty shriners have guaranteed $100 each to defray expenses.

Danvers Track Meet Called Off

DANVERS, June 17.—The monster track meet, which was scheduled to be held here today, was called off on account of rain. It will be staged Saturday afternoon, provided the weather is good on that day.

Chicago Race Postponed.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The 500-mile auto race at the Speedway Saturday has been postponed for one week on account of the car strike.

Why Willard Can Whip Carpentier

Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, fought his first ring battle at the age of thirteen years. He has been fighting steadily ever since.

Jess Willard says if he ever fights Carpentier he will defeat him for that reason. The Frenchman, Jess says, used up too much of his vitality early in life and it is telling on him now.

In another chapter of his autobiographies in the AMERICAN tomorrow the world's champion also tells interestingly of his own first glimpse of the squared circle. Some of the things he learned certainly opened his eyes.

It's a mighty interesting story, this life of Willard, as he tells it.

Dorchester High Beats Commerce in Title Game

The Dorchester High nine won the championship of the Boston high schools by defeating the High school of Commerce at the Dudley avenue grounds this morning by a count of 10 to 8. Dorchester batched the hits in the second session and scored seven runs. The Dorchester boys smashed out their other tally in the eighth frame.

Hallet pitched a high grade of ball for Dorchester allowing but six hits. Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Dorchester	3	7	0
Commerce	0	0	0

Batteries—Hallet and Corrigan; Gonsegin and Winslow.

Readville Races Put Over to Saturday

The motorcycle races scheduled for Readville today have been postponed until Saturday because of the inclement weather.

25 WILL GO TO THE WORLD'S SERIES

All Expenses Paid by the Boston American

RUDOLPH, Braves Pitcher — LEONARD, Red Sox Pitcher

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO SEE WORLD'S SERIES FREE?

Fans, This Is Your Chance! Get Your Nomination In TODAY!

The American's 1915 World's Series Contest is open for nomination. Twenty-five of New England's fans will go to see the World's Series games as the guests of the Boston American, with all expenses paid.

The competition involves no expense on the part of contestants—no soliciting for subscriptions. It is a contest in which ONLY VOTE COUPONS COUNT and in which the only way of getting vote coupons is to clip them from the Daily and Sunday issues of the Boston American.

Remember! The first twenty-five in the contest will have the pleasure of witnessing FREE all the games in the World's Series.

The idea of the competition is to give every fan that reads the American a chance to be on deck when the two rival major league teams face each other on the 1915 World's Championship.

Therefore, we will not be satisfied until every fan sends in his nomination.

There is nothing complicated about the vote plan. This newspaper will pay all expenses of the twenty-five leaders on the tours to the games, wherever they may be held. The lucky twenty-five will start from city to city in a chartered Pullman car, which will be equipped with everything that will add to the pleasure and comfort of the trip.

There is one particular reason why every fan in New England should be in this race. It seems almost a certainty that either the Red Sox or the Braves will be perched on top when the leagues' race comes to an end.

Would YOU like to be seated in a grandstand seat when the Braves or Red Sox are battling for the world's highest honors in baseball?

Send In This Nomination Blank NOW

Address .....

Only one of these blanks will be credited to any one contestant.

You certainly would consider it the happiest moment of your life to be on the scene of this year's great struggle.

Then think NOW so that you can be on hand. The way to fix things is to send in your nomination blank TODAY—AT ONCE.

Every male over sixteen years of age, is eligible to try for one of the free trips. Employees of the American, their families or relatives or any other person engaged in the newspaper business are not allowed to compete.

The leader in the contest will not receive anything different from the candidate who comes out twenty-fifth. Every winner is on an equal basis. In case of a tie, the tied contestants will receive prizes exactly alike, as offered.

"WELL," said Tommy, "we have had a good many differences of opinion, but we've never quarreled, have we?"

He held out his hand.

"My hat off," said Barclay, "to the best sportsman I have ever known."

But in his heart he thought that Tommy would very soon tire of earning a living, and his word went forth to the effect that he would not look with approval on any institution which should offer salaried employment to Thomas Barclay. And from one institution to another this word spread like rumor.

But Tommy did not at once look for employment. Of course that, considering how difficult it is to find employment, would have been the sensible thing to do. But he did what a lover would do. He went at once to look for Celestia.

Meanwhile no less important a person than Mary Blackstone had looked for Celestia and found her. Descending from a twelve-thousand dollar car of foreign make, she had rung the front door bell of the Douglass house and been admitted by Freddie the Ferret, whose chief pleasure in life it had become to be ever as near Celestia as possible, to do chores for her and to run errands.

"You want to see her?" asked Freddie.

"Celestia? Yes."

"Step right in."

He ushered her into a front room where Celestia was busy at a table covered with papers.

"High-Flyer to see you," answered Freddie, and withdrew.

Celestia rose and came shyly forward. She did not know her visitor by name. She had never seen her before. But something told her that the slim, beautiful, dark girl in the tailor-made suit was not altogether a stranger.

"Should I have made an appointment?" asked Miss Blackstone.

"Surely not. This is much simpler. Won't you sit down?"

Mary was careful to choose a chair which stood with its back to the light.

"I came," she said, "upon a most delicate errand."

"Yes."

"We have a mutual friend"——

"Mr. Barclay."

"How did you guess?"

"None of my other friends would be at all likely to be a friend of yours, too. All my friends in this world, so far, are either poor people or laborers."

"All but Mr. Barclay"

Celestia nodded.

"I've come to speak to you about him. He has as you know a great future before him. He is the idol of his father's heart, and one of the best-loved young men in New York. His friends very naturally—please don't misunderstand me—it's nothing against you—but we've all heard of the melodramatic Octagon fire rescue, and we all know how susceptible he is to romance and beauty and—you are beautiful. Do you mind if I say that? You are perfectly beautiful"——

"But I belong to a different station in life than this mutual friend of ours who is so susceptible to romance and beauty, and you have come to beg off for him with arguments about blasted prospects and ruined careers and social ostracism."

Mary calls on Celestia to talk about Tommy

Though Celestia spoke with great gentleness Miss Blackstone was for a moment greatly taken back. But recovering she laughed good-naturedly and said:

"You are not only beautiful but clever. You read me like a book. And this being so you must see just as clearly as I that it wouldn't do."

"But suppose"——

"Think of his future, my dear girl. Let him off!"

"Suppose he doesn't want to be let off?"

"Of course he won't want to be let off—till afterward."

"Why couldn't I make him a good wife?"

"You are too sensible to ask questions like that. You couldn't expect his friends to"——

"Receive me? Perhaps not. And yet I speak a number of languages; I have your word for it that I have good looks. At table my chief weapon is a fork. I am young and healthy, and I haven't been long enough in this world to have a past. Am I so utterly different then from other people in society? Is it against me that I work hard and feel that I have a mission in life?"

Perhaps."

"I'VE had enough," he said, gruffly. "If I have any more I shall have had too much, and there may be other things to do yet." He walked to the window and looked out. "Yes," he exclaimed with unwonted excitement, "the thing is well alight!"

Crawley gulped the brandy down. "Don't you think," he said, "that it would be as well for us to put out the lights?"

"NOTHING CAN SAVE THE STABLE NOW"

"Yes, you are right," answered Brooke. "We ought to be in bed when the alarm comes. Come, I'll show you your bedroom. I hope you'll sleep."

It was only now that the thing had been done that real significance came to him—the real understanding of what it meant.

"It's rather a farce to go to bed tonight," he grunted, "but we must keep up appearances. Besides, the longer the delay in sending the alarm into Guildford the safer it will be. Though," he added, turning, with a nod in the direction of the blazing barn, "nothing could save it now, thank heaven."

"You are sure?" asked Crawley, with a return to his old nervousness.

"Positive, returned Brooke, laconically.

The younger man held his hand out impulsively. "How can I ever thank you for what you've done, old man?" he asked huskily.

"Nonsense," retorted Brooke. "You'd do the same for me if I were in such a deuce of a hole. Any man would for the matter of that."

"I'm not so sure of that," answered Crawley. "Do you realize what it means, what it may mean?"

"I'm breathing it," said Brooke, with a grim smile. "Still, what's the use of crossing a bridge till you come to it? We're as good as out of the wood—oh, confound it all, what the dickens am I talking about? He shuddered, went to the fire and crouched over it. "Hang it all, Crawley," he muttered, "your nerves are infectious! I seem to have gone all to pieces! I'm—I don't know what it is, for I've never felt quite like I do now in all my life, and I've been in a jolly sight tighter places than this; but there's something in the air. I can't shake it off. I'm—well, I'm beginning to feel rather sorry for—for that poor woman. After all, she was only a woman.

"And I can't get Di out of my mind," said Brooke, with a nervous look around. "If she were ever to know! But she never shall, shall she, Crawley? It would kill her, you know. You don't know how sensitive she is.

"I suppose all women are, when it comes to the point, and—I tell you, Crawley, if ever she were to think ugly things of me, if ever I were to lose her love, I'd—I'd—yes, I really believe I'd put an end to it! You've no idea what she is to me, old man! She's my life—everything—everything! And she thinks such a lot of me, too, bless her dear heart!"

"She thinks I'm a sort of immortal, Crawley, and if ever she were to hear of this night's work, if ever she were to know that I had been mixed up in a business of this sort, why she'd—she'd hate me—yes, she would. She's the very soul of goodness and purity. She could never understand anything that was evil. No, God, I hate to think that all this time my darling has been sleeping and thinking! I have been doing nothing but come down here for important papers, Crawley. I've never lied to her in my life, and somehow I've got the sort of feeling that, because I've lied to her tonight, I shall never be able to look her fair and square in the face again! God bless my darling wife!"

Crawley winced and turned his face away. If only Brooke knew! And assuredly he must know some day. It was too great a test to put upon his phenomenal luck to hope that the truth might be kept from him forever. And when he knew the truth! What then?

Brooke shook himself like a huge mastiff.

HE GIVES CRAWLEY A PARTING WARNING

"Come, come," he growled, "this will never do! Getting sentimental in my old age. Fie, fie, Godfrey!" he laughed. It was a poor travesty of a laugh. "Switch off that light!" he said. "We've got to go warily. The thing isn't done yet, by a long shot. That's right. Now come along, and we'll retire for the night and trust to luck."

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day, I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? It has helped others, why not you?

How French Soldiers and Sailors Are Treated

French soldiers and sailors are being treated with Cadum ointment during the war. 200,000 boxes of it were ordered by the Minister of War, and approved by the Director of the Health Department. These high officials knew what they were doing because they could see on each box the names of the various ingredients of which Cadum is made. No matter how many things you have tried, you can take fresh courage, because Cadum ointment is a remedy for skin diseases that is different from anything else. It stops aching at once, and begins healing with the first application. Obstinate skin troubles, such as eczema, pimples, sores, eruptions, ringworm, chafings etc., yield quickly to its wonderful soothing and healing properties. Trial box, 10c.; large box, 25c.—Advertisement.

Husbands of Others

"Let Them Alone," Is Beatrice Fairfax's Warning to Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF some girl you know had a beautiful gold bracelet, would you sneak into her home, steal the jewel and then flaunt it in the face of the world with the serene feeling that the bracelet was yours because you had taken it, and that no punishment would ever befall you? Absurd suggestion—is it not?

Well, then, if the stealing of a mere bauble would brand you as a thief to be shunned by decent people and to be shut in prison to repent of your crime, how can you expect that the theft of love and honor—the stealing of a man's protection and affection is to go unpunished?

Do any of you girls who give your love to a man who has sworn to "love, honor and cherish" another woman until death, ever look at your affair with that man in the clear light of reason and common sense? I think not. The only light in which you ever consider it is the murky haze of your willful blindness or the violent gleam of your uncontrolled desires.

Now, for a few minutes, turn your face to the light and with me look impartially at the situation you are making. Don't flinch when you see it in all its distorted ugliness. Keep on looking until your brain has recovered sanity and power enough to control your feverish and cruel little heart.

Look at the wife from whom you are stealing the priceless jewel of love and trust in the man she married. You are going to tear her home of love down about her head. You are going to wreck her home itself. A few years ago she was young and pretty as you are now—or perhaps she was "understanding" and sympathetic and so attracted the man who is now the greatest factor in her life.

She gave him her youth, her energy, her love, her life itself. And he tired of her. Do you dare take her whole joy in life away from her? Her husband has been the centre of, her universe for years. Do you dare throw her whole world off its orbit and leave it smashed to atoms at her feet? Do you dare blot out the sunshine from her life forever?

Can you steal your happiness and make another woman pay for it in agony?

WHAT OF THE OUTCOME?

If you dare—if you toss your head and cynically murmur, "Every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost," aren't you afraid that your retaliation will be accepted? You will be condemned and shunned by decent people. Your friends will pity you, but despise you too much to be kind to you in your state of social leprosy. You will be an outcast and subjected to insult. Your parents and family will be outcasts, too, because they are of your blood—and how they will suffer as they join in paying the toll of your stolen happiness!

Can you bear all that? Can you bear knowing that you have hurt the career of the man you love so unwisely? Men will not feel that they can trust him in business when he has proven so untrustworthy in the most sacred relation of life. He will be dropped by his friends and have to drop the rest whose wives will refuse to recognize you?

Then face the cruellest fate of all—the man who turns from the wife who has given him soul and spirit and love, will even more surely turn from the girl who has given the last to give. Face desertion. For that will be your portion as surely as you forced it on another woman.

If the wife who is bound to him by ties of love and honor and decency—by ties of home and children, perhaps—by custom and habit —cannot hold him, how can you expect to do so who have broken all of these bonds?

Some day he will see a face that is younger and fresher than yours. It will have the mystery of the unknown.

Off after it will go your flight of love. There will be nothing but an outworn passion to hold him to you. And that is a weak cable soon broken. He will no longer have society to fear. He will have no shred of manhood and honor to bind him. He sacrificed them all for you.

Off he will go after his newer fancy, and you will not have the one consolation given the poor wife whose life you spoiled even as some younger woman is spoiling your married and shameful existence. Society will not offer you sympathy and help. Instead it will laugh and sneer at the thief who was not clever enough to hold her stolen property, and in your wretchedness and shame you will be alone.

DON'T BE MISLED

"But he is going to marry me," you say. "His first marriage was all a mistake, and he realizes that I am the one love of his life."

It this is so—and there is about one chance in a hundred that it is—don't let him come into your life until he is free to marry you. And even then, could you ever trust a man who had made love to you when bound in honor to another woman?

Your whole life would be one long miserable fear of the day when he would serve you as you had helped him serve your predecessor. You would be torn by suspicion of every woman who touched his life—even at its mere edges. You would know that these were qualities of falseness and deceit, of self-indulgence and of pitilessness for a woman once he had tired of her in your lover's nature! You would grow wretched waiting for the inevitable day when he would tire of you and set off on another dishonorable wooing. You would murder your youth and charm by your very fear of loss of power when once they were gone.

But the chances are ninety-nine against one that you will ever be given the title of "wife" by the man who has come to know that you do not hold it sacred.

The price you must pay for the love of another woman's husband is higher than that extorted from any other thief—it is peace of mind, honor, position, family ties, self-respect, honorable love and a home and children. All this you pay for a little period of delirious love-making—and at the end you reap remorse, desertion and lifelong misery.

Can you persuade yourself that it is worthwhile? No—I am sure you never can. You have faced the light. You have looked the theft you contemplated square in the face, and you shrink. If you have one grain of decency and one of common sense you cannot steal another woman's husband. Be sure of that!

Does any of this fail to daunt you?

Their Married Life

Warren Sees Signs of Trouble in His Brother's Home

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

"WARREN, don't forget and go to bed," said Helen to her brother-in-law.

"Why? What's going on tonight?"

"Have you forgotten that we are going down to play cards with Bob and Louise?"

"Tonight?"

"Yes: are you so very tired?"

"Oh, I suppose not; what time do we have to start?"

"Not before eight. You'll have time for a nice rest before then."

Helen was somewhat elated at Warren's manner of taking the affair. She had made the date, and here he was taking it philosophically. She went back to her dresser and proceeded with her dressing. Helen was really concerned about Louise. She had not seen her since the day that she had come down to tell her about her quarrel with Bob.

Of course, Helen had called her up on the telephone, but Louise had not raved enthusiastically in spite of the fact that she assured Helen that everything was all right. Helen had meant to run down and see her, but she had been busy and she had relied upon their card date to find out about everything.

There was something though about the quarrel between Bob and Louise that vaguely comforted Helen. She had thought Louise possessed something that she and Warren lacked in their relations, and here was Louise crying over a quarrel with Bob.

She was terribly sorry for Louise, but somehow it placed the two women on the same plane and made Helen happier. It was a queer way of reasoning, but it satisfied Helen.

WARREN BEGS HER TO SIT STILL A MINUTE

Helen finished dressing and went back to tell Warren. Now that she was ready to go, she hated waiting. She must have dignified, for Warren looked up in a few minutes and said disagreeably:

"Can't you sit still five minutes?" Instead of replying Helen laughed. "Why, what was I doing?"

"Pirouetting around, of course."

"Well, I'll sit still. I promise."

Helen sat still for some five minutes, then she turned to look at the clock. Still ten minutes to wait. She got up as quietly as possible and tip-toed out to the dining room, where she had left her new bridge scores. She wanted to study them to Warren before they left.

Warren was in the living room and was making a great noise from the bathroom.

"Where on earth did you put my razor?" He shouted after a fruitless rummaging around.

"Here's the medicine chest," said Helen penitently running to help him. "Here it is. Are you going to shave? It's getting late."

"That's right, nag at a man, it's so pleasant."

Helen was righteously angry at Warren. He might have shaved long ago and saved the time. Now they would be late in arriving and she had promised Louise that they would be down early. It was after 8 already.

Warren began to draw hot water, and Helen knew that it would not do any good to say anything more. So she went back to the living room, put her bridge scores away and sat down to read. It was nearly 9 o'clock before they started, and it took fifteen minutes to get to Bob's apartment. Louise opened the door and said gaily:

"We thought you weren't coming." Helen looked at her closely and thought she could discern tear-rimmed lids.

She followed Louise into the pretty bedroom, and turned to her impetuously, "Is everything all right, dear?"

Louise laughed and Helen imagined that it was just a little bit forced.

Helen looked at her anxiously. "Bye Louise, you know how interested I am. And think, dear, of the times you have helped me."

"And think of the times you helped me before I was married."

LOUIS DOES NOT PLAY AS WELL AS USUAL

"Not nearly as much."

"Yes, indeed," and then Louise opened her mouth as though she were about to say something more, but she changed her mind and turned away. Helen was sure now that she was keeping something back.

They went out into the living room and Bob greeted Helen as nervously as usual. The tables was all ready for the game to begin and Helen sat down opposite Bob.

Louise did not play as well as usual. She seemed nervous, and once made a foolish mistake and apologized nervously for it. Bob looked at her darkly, and Warren smiled. Helen wondered if he would have been as gentlemanly about it if she had been playing with him.

The evening was not a success, although there was not any one thing that Helen could find fault with. She and Bob had the good cards and walked away with the score. Louise seemed out of sorts and although Bob talked a good deal there seemed to be a lack of sincerity about his remarks.

Warren drew a long breath as they stepped out into the street.

"Wonder what's wrong in that camp," he remarked.

"Louise was probably tired," defended Helen, mentally resolving to try and find out about it the next day when Louisa was alone.

Louise like a quarrel to me. Well, they can't expect a honeymoon to last forever."

(Another installment in this fascinating series will appear soon on this page.)

Nothing Is Too Expensive to Make Joe Beamish Feel at Home

I HOPE YOU'LL FORGIVE ME, DIANA, FOR GETTING CROSS WHEN YOU MADE A 'BARBER-POLE' OUT OF MY 'ROLLING-PIN.' I CAN SEE NOW IT WAS A ACK OF LILANTHROPY. I MEAN PHILILANTHROPY — YES, I DO, NOW
A ACK OF PHILANTHROPY IS RIGHT. I MADE A BARBER-POLE OUTTA YOUR ROLLING-PIN SO'S JOE BEAMISH COULD LOOK AT IT AND FEEL TO HOME. REMEMBER WE PULLED HIM OUT OF A BARBER-SHOP — MIM — AND I HOPE YOU DON'T REGRET SACRERFIZING YOUR ROLLING-PIN
NOW THAT I SEE MATTERS IN THEIR TRUE LIGHT I REBUKE IN MY SALERATUS. ALSO I MAKIN YOU WON'T CARE ABOUT YOUR BAY-RUM

And Then Look at the Odds Against Him

I'LL GO IN HERE BY MEYER GERSON'S CIGAR STORE AND SPEND THE EFTERNOON. I HOPE THAT PHIL BARTELSTEIN IS IN THERE. I ALWAYS LIKE TO MAKE HIM LOOK CHEAP!
IF I HAD THE MONEY I'D BET YOU ON THAT POINT, ABE!
WHY DONT YOU BECK UP YOUR TALKING WITH MONEH, BARTELSTEIN? I'LL BET UP FIVE DOLLARS CASH THAT I'M RIGHT
I CANT AFFORD TO BET FIVE DOLLARS. A DOLLAR IS MY LIMIT
I'M TALKING AND MY MONEH IS TALKING AND YOURE ONLY ARGUING WITH ME. THE LEAST I BET IS FIVE DOLLARS, YOU PIKER, YOU!
I'LL TAKE A DOLLAR OF THAT BET TO MAKE UP THE FIVE
I'LL PUT UP A DOLLAR TOWARDS THE FIVE
SO WILL I

EDWARD A. FILENE ON WORLD PEACE

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—Edward A. Filene of Boston spoke today at the conference to discuss a proposed league of peace. Steps are to be taken to secure the support of public opinion for the movement. Former President Taft, President Lowell of Harvard, Oscar S. Straus, Hamilton Holt and Judge George Gray were speakers yesterday.

Mr. Filene said in part:

"I do not assert that the next war or any war may not break out, but I am now more than ever sure that we can do much to defend the peaceful.

"I am in favor of a society of any nation that goes to war without first trying to get its differences settled.

"The money we appropriate now, a million dollars, for example, for the army and navy, would be better spent if we should spend it for some scientific method of settling disputes between nations. Why not spend it for the study of the causes of war?

"I believe public opinion could turn the scale in favor of peace. Public opinion is a force that is attracting attention as never before. Public opinion is a force that has been responsible for many reforms. The United States is not ready for the present controversy between nations, some form of international court of arbitration is required against a law-breaking nation. For that reason we favor, if we would preserve our own interests and those of civilization in general.

ANOTHER CONTEST STANDING SUNDAY

Another vote standing in the AMERICAN'S California Tours Contest will be printed in next Sunday's AMERICAN. It will include all votes polled up to and including Series "D." Series "E" standing will be published one week from next Sunday, June 27.

With only sixteen days more before the end of the competition, the candidates must realize that there is no time to waste and that they should urge their friends to DOUBLE their vote-gathering efforts and not to be secure, a place among the leading twenty-five.

Get Baby Seal in Hingham Waters

The latest acquisition to the Aquarium at South Boston is a baby seal, caught off Crow Point, Hingham, by Chief Engineer Francis F. Jones of the Nantasket steamer Old Colony.

The seal, which is thought to have been separated from its mother, appeared in the water last Monday close to the side of the steamer at the Crow Point wharf.

GUN PRESENTED TO N. SALLINGER

A recent two-day fishing trip to Hodgkins Lakes turned out to be more a jolly affair as conducted by N. Sallinger, that his friends insist upon making a permanent institution of his talents in presenting a good time.

The guns provided for the occasion proved to N. Sallinger at the banquet tendered him at the Quincy House on Monday night that Georgian was not only a crack marksman, but a shrewd judge of character in choosing a companion for organizing a good time, for each of the guns presented was suited to the whim exhibited by the recipient in the two days' fishing. Paul Sallinger received a gun with a silver plate, while Max Mitchell, Frank Kennedy, Maurice Sallinger, Harry Sallinger, Patrick Herron and Walter Sallinger received guns with gold plates.

Fifty-five Harvard men have issued their invitations for a dinner to their military companions who have enlisted in the Harvard regiments. The dinner will be given at the Harvard Club, Boston, on Saturday evening, June 26, with President Hugo Munsterberg presiding. Among the guests will be Governor Walcott, ex-Governor Guild, Lieutenant-Governor Cole, Mayor Curley, Commissioner Stevens, Commissioner Watson, Commissioner Hall, Commissioner Kelley, Commissioner Whittemore, Commissioner Wilson, ex-baseball and football players and many others.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Why Should Railroad Looters Dread the Law?

AFTER failing in one United States Court, J. L. Billard, one of the highly respected millionaires who co-operated in wrecking the New Haven Railroad, has secured from Judge Hunt a decree of immunity for his part in that transaction which brought ruin and woe upon so many New England households.

It seems peculiarly difficult under this administration to get either efficient regulation of railroads or to secure the punishment of railroad looters for their offences.

It is difficult to define in a few words the part Billard played in the New Haven spoliation. In a less colossal form of robbery he might have been described as the "fence." But of course such terse and accurate descriptions are not to be applied to multi-millionaires of hitherto unimpeachable business and social standing, who merely lent their intellects to a successful endeavor to rob a corporation.

Billard helped Morgan, Mellen and others then in authority and control of the New Haven to juggle the stocks of railroad and steamship lines which they were acquiring for that corporation in violation of law. He enabled them to do what the law said they must not do. That they had no compunctions about doing it is illustrative of the attitude of men of that type toward the law.

But besides helping the New Haven corporation to acquire and hold stock in the Boston & Maine illegally, and to deal in the stock of the New England Navigation Company in defiance of the law, Mr. Billard so managed these transactions that $3,824,147 of the New Haven's money mysteriously disappeared. The New Haven says that Billard has it. "Falsely and fraudulently," is the way the corporation claims he got it. What is certain is that the stockholders of the corporation, to whom it rightfully belongs, never did get it.

Billard is being sued civilly for this mysteriously missing sum. Criminally he was indicted by a United States Grand Jury for his part in engineering the illegal and criminal combinations of corporations which finally ended in the New Haven crash.

Comes now a United States judge and says that because Billard confessed before the Interstate Commerce Commission part of his wrong doing, he is immune from all prosecution. Perhaps that is the law. It is not the part of the AMERICAN in the face of a judicial decision to question it. But the incident is only one more of a series which has gone to show with how little heart, energy and determination the Federal authorities under the present administration have prosecuted rich offenders against the law, whether they have been trust magnates or railroad looters. The doctrine that guilt is personal seems to have disappeared.

It is not extraordinary, however, that an administration founded on railroad favors should look with no particular antagonism upon the possessors of fortunes built up by railroad corruption and high finance.

After the Oratory Comes the Need for Action

THE NATIONAL SECURITY LEAGUE has ended its conference. Its members and a large number of the general public have listened to a series of speeches on peace and preparedness in which the needs of the nation were explained by men professionally and intellectually fitted for that task.

AND NOW THAT IT IS ALL OVER, THE ETERNAL QUESTION ARISES, "WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?"

At Washington the administration sits in studied indifference to the public sentiment which is sweeping all over the country. The President chilled the promoters of the recent conference with an icily perfunctory letter. The Secretary of the Navy was openly hostile and pettishly impertinent. The Secretary of War, though sympathetic, was so dominated by the administration's attitude as to be unable to give the event the support he would willingly have extended.

It is obvious that, before preparing to defend ourselves against any foreign aggressor, this nation will have to overcome the stolid antagonism of the administration now in power. That is the task which the members of this league have set for themselves. The administration can best be reached through the Congress which will assemble next December, and which ought to be called in special session before that time. Upon the members of this Congress should be impressed the fact that the country looks for immediate constructive action for national defence. More immediately responsible to public sentiment than the President, Representatives may be expected to give more heed to such representation.

It is not probable that in the next Congress Mr. Wilson will have the whip hand which he has had heretofore. It should be the study of all interested in the vital needs for national defence to see to it that all members of the coming Congress shall go to the Capitol determined to put through a program responsive to the public demand despite any endeavors to the contrary originating in the White House.

Tells How a Girl May Succed as an Author

Compiled by Ethel Lloyd Patterson

Mrs. Atherton is, unquestionably one of the foremost novelists of today. Her latest novel, "Perch of the Devil," has been as widely read as any American fiction of recent years.

NO. 3—FINANCES

A GIRL who wishes to become an author must not go into the work with any idea of an immediate and dazzling fortune. In my previous article I have written that, in my opinion, every girl who chooses a literary career should start it by at least one year's work on a newspaper or a course in the School of Journalism. The compensation in the more practical field of writing begins at about twelve or fifteen dollars a week on a staff of the smaller out-of-town newspapers, and from twenty to thirty dollars a week on the larger city papers. A great many of the larger newspapers do not give beginners salaries at all. Such workers are engaged at what is called "space rates." This means they are paid by the inch for the amount of their writing which is published.

The average newspaper article is paid for at the rate of about five dollars a column. I think any girl working "on space" for a newspaper would be doing very well if she were to average twenty dollars a week during the first six months of her labors. Of course, were she to go into "special articles" and "interviews" her salary soon might mount up, according to her value to her newspaper.

I assume that the girl who wishes to write will begin her ventures in the short story field, while she still has some financial hold in the land of journalism. One cent a word is about as low a rate as any magazine should pay for fiction, and ten cents a word is as high as any writer may hope to attain after she is well established in the literary world—unless she happens to be the sensation of the moment, when she can name her price. I should say any young author who receives from three to five cents a word for special articles or short fiction stories has succeeded in establishing herself quite firmly in her career.

I think, perhaps, it is tales of the large sums of money to be won as a popular novelist that tempt many girls to try their hands at a form of work they fondly believe to be easy. I think I can explode the "royal royalty" theory in a very few words by telling you the average contract made by a publisher with an author. And this, mind you, is considered generous. It is customary to offer a new author 10 per cent. of the money received from the sale of the first five thousand books. After the first five thousand there are some publishers open-handed enough to give their author 15 per cent. from the sales of the books. Undoubtedly, there are best sellers that net their writers quite neat little fortunes; but, on the other hand, I have been told the average amount the average novelist earns is about five hundred dollars on each book. Bear in mind very few people can write a novel in less than three months and you will begin to understand authors do not live in luxury on their too-easy gains. On the other hand, novelists of established reputations get 20 per cent. from the first volumes sold, and, if "best sellers," anywhere from five thousand to twenty thousand dollars advance. They also receive from ten to twelve cents a word for serialization. But these are the reward of a long and continuous apprenticeship, seldom of accident. A swift rise generally means a brief career.

Choice

By Jane McLean

WOULD you that shadowy maid Success,
Who cradles in her arms sweet Fame,
Or would you wear the worker's dress
And count Success as but a name?

Would you the baffling far-off lands,
Where Fame leads breathlessly away,
Or life bound by one woman's hands
And with her watch the firelight play?

Would you, self-centred and alone,
The sunny heights of grandeur seek,
Or would you Love herself have known?
Choose. I am Life. I bid you speak!
